When I Was One,
I Had Just Begun.

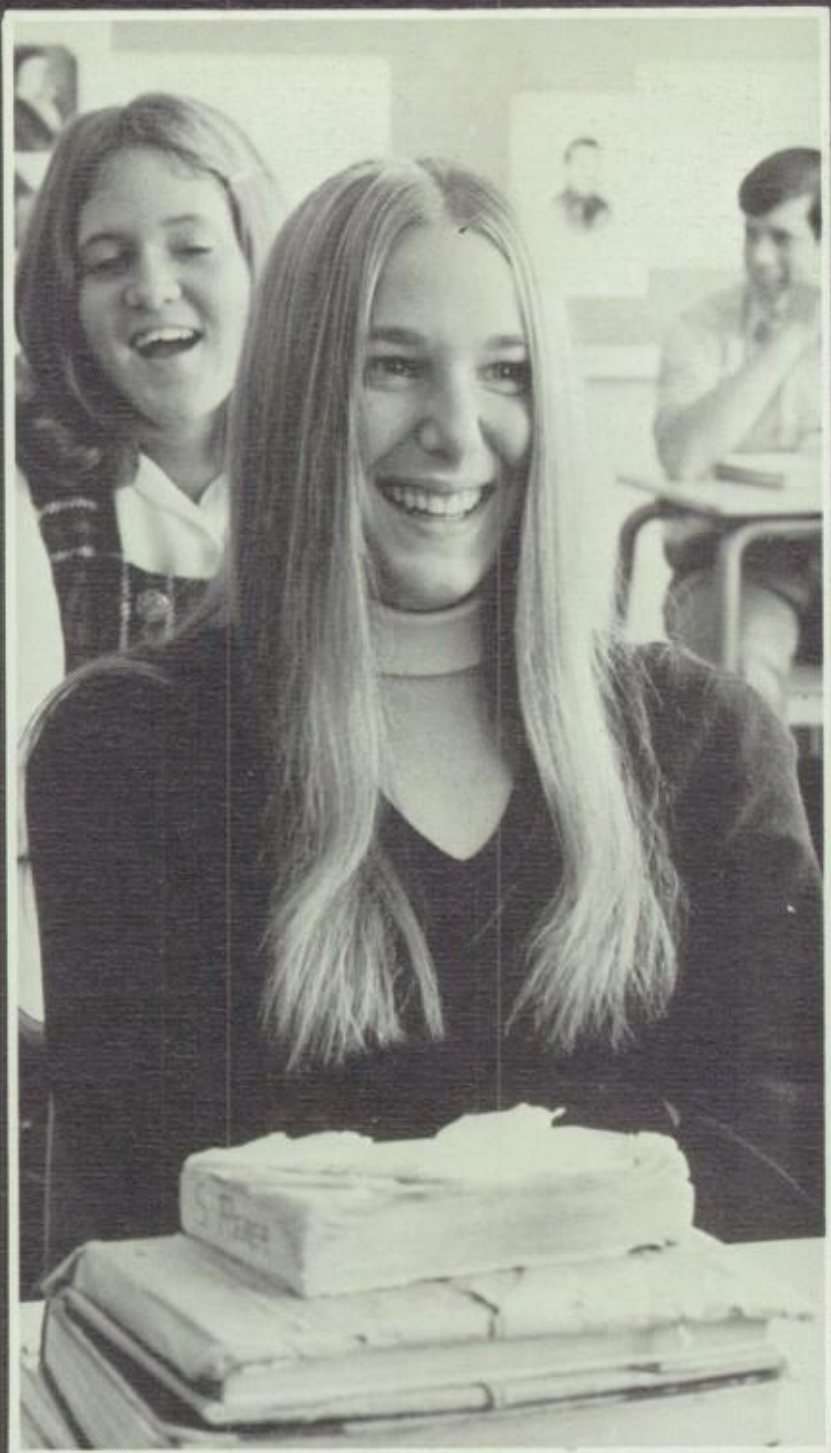

When I Was Two,
I Was Nearly New.

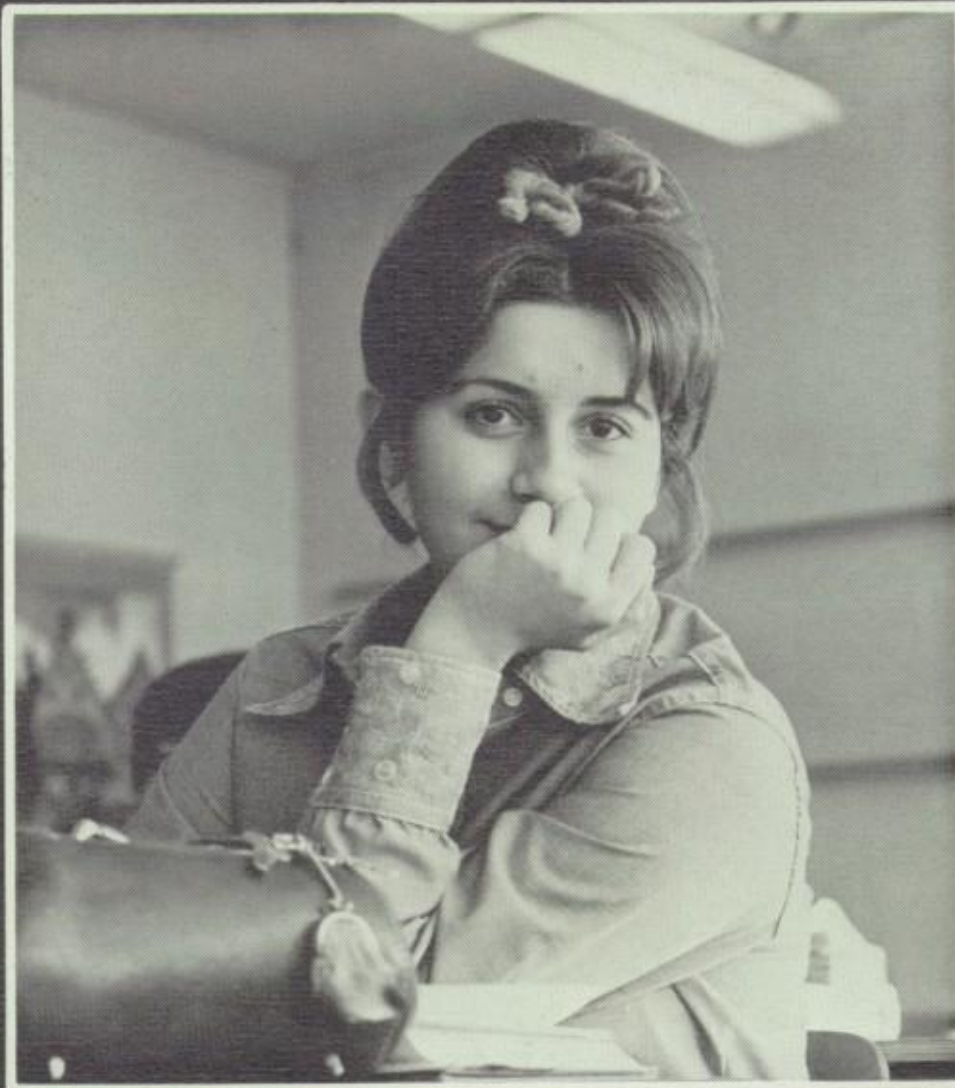

When I Was Three,
I Was Hardly Me.

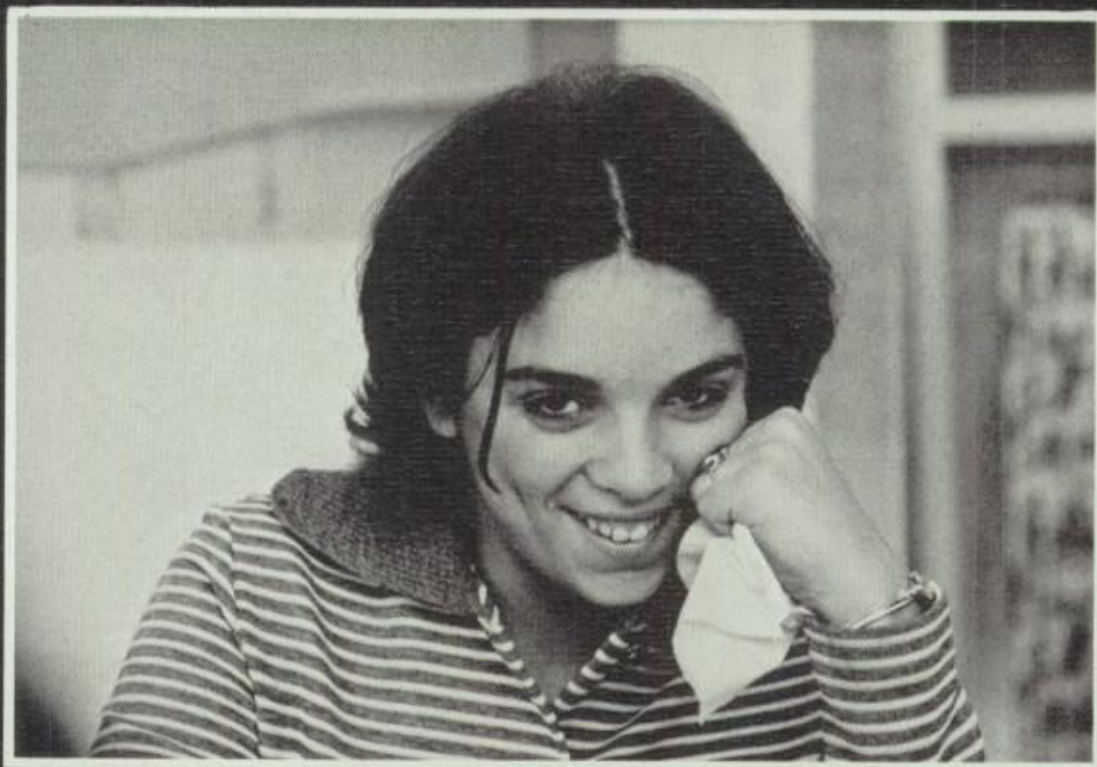

When I Was Four,
I Was Not Much More.

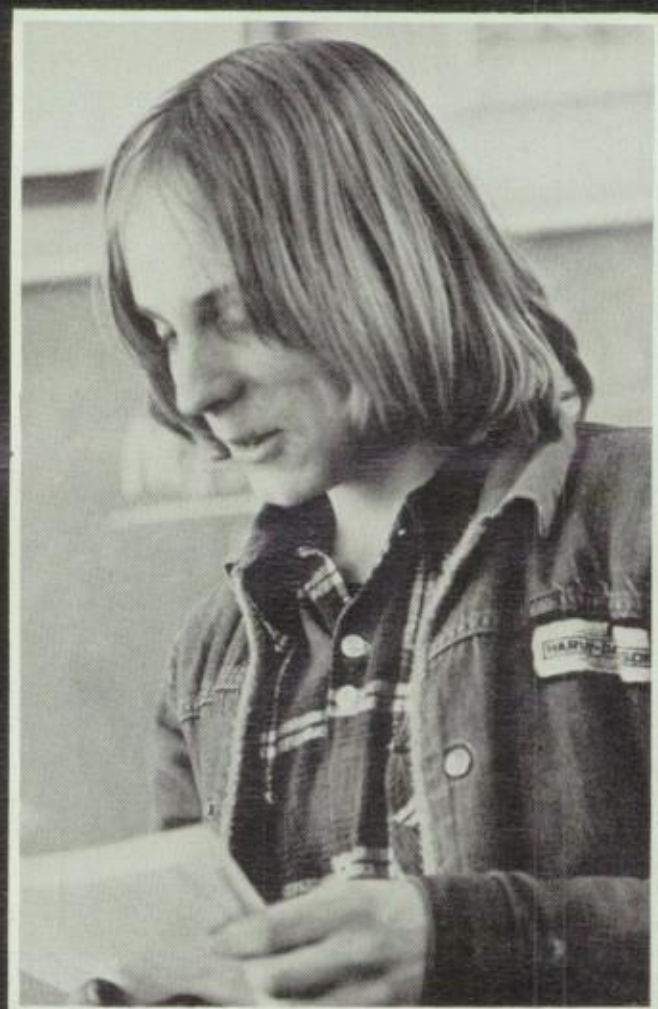

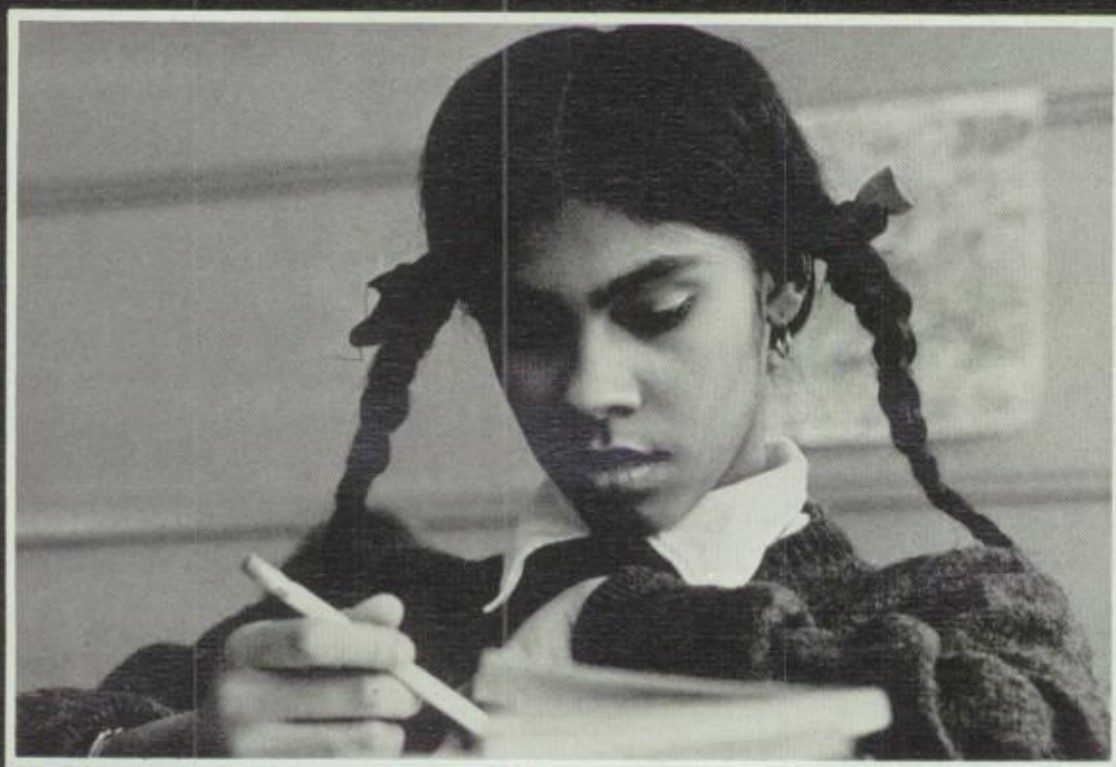

When I Was Five,
I Was Just Alive.

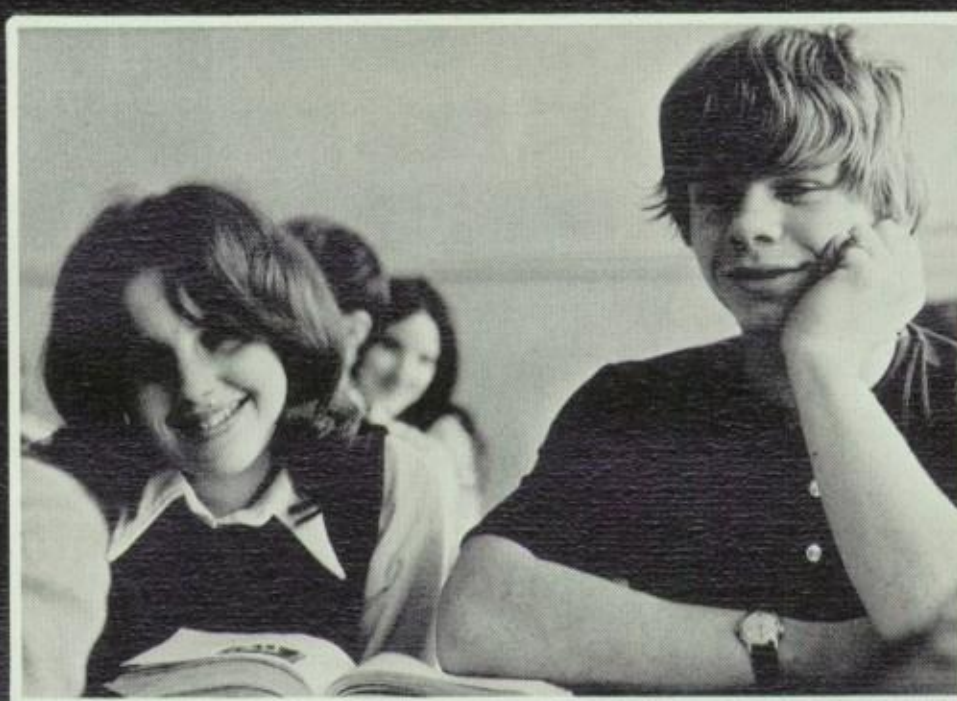

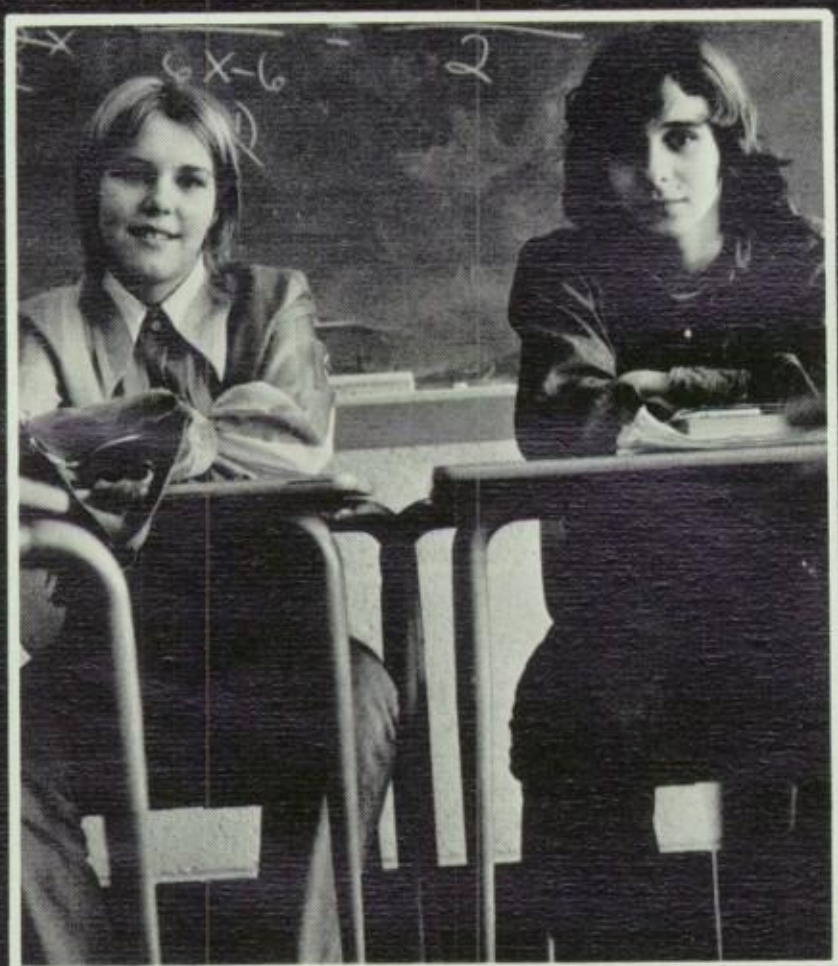

But Now I Am Six, I'm As Clever As Clever,
So I Think I'll Be Six Now, Forever and Ever.

When Anne and I Go Out a Walk
We Hold Each Other's Hand and Talk
Of All the Things We Mean to Do
When Anne and I Are Forty-two.

"Pooh!"
 "Yes?" said Pooh.
 "When I'm — when — Pooh!"
 "Yes, Christopher Robin?"
 "I'm not going to do Nothing anymore."
 "Never again?"
 "Well not so much. They don't let you."

Pooh waited for him to go on, but he was silent.

"Pooh, when I'm — you know —
When I'm not doing
Nothing, will you come up here to see me sometime?"

"Just me?"

"Yes, Pooh."

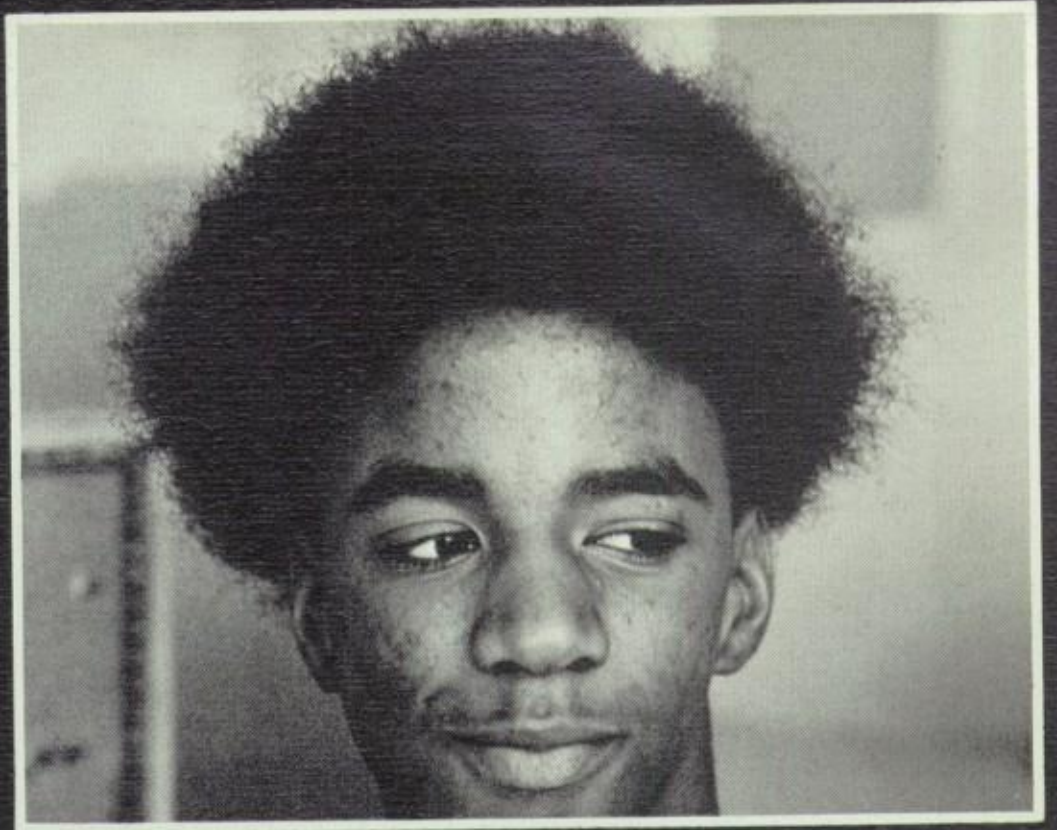

"Will you be here, too?"

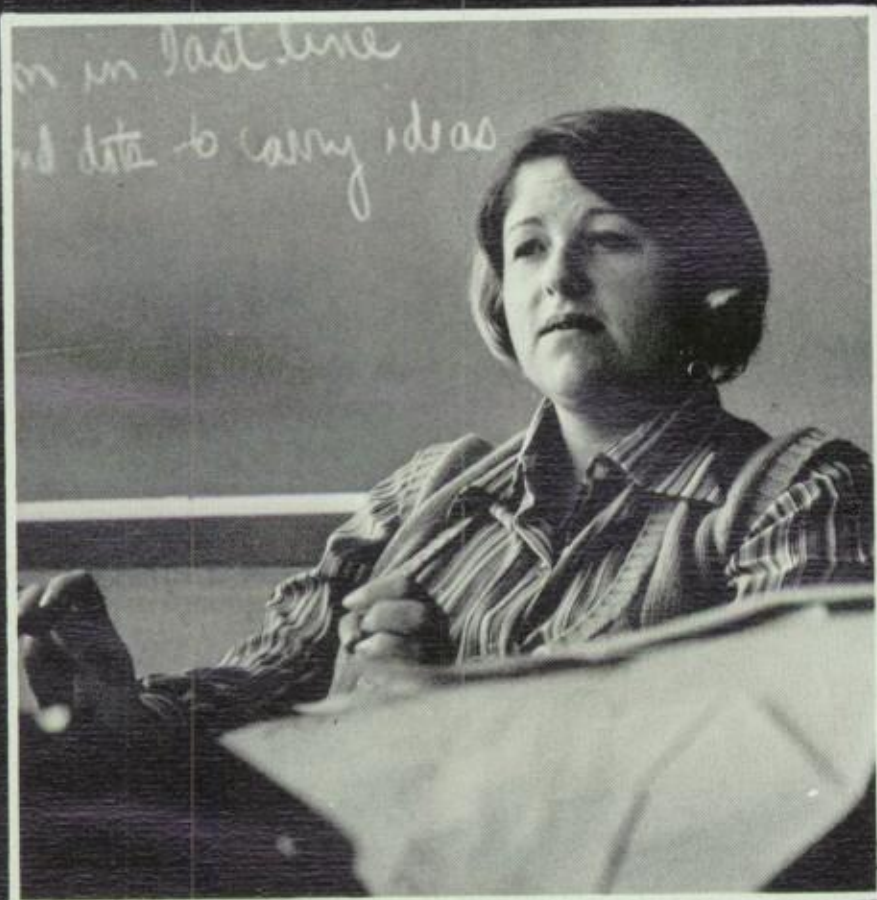

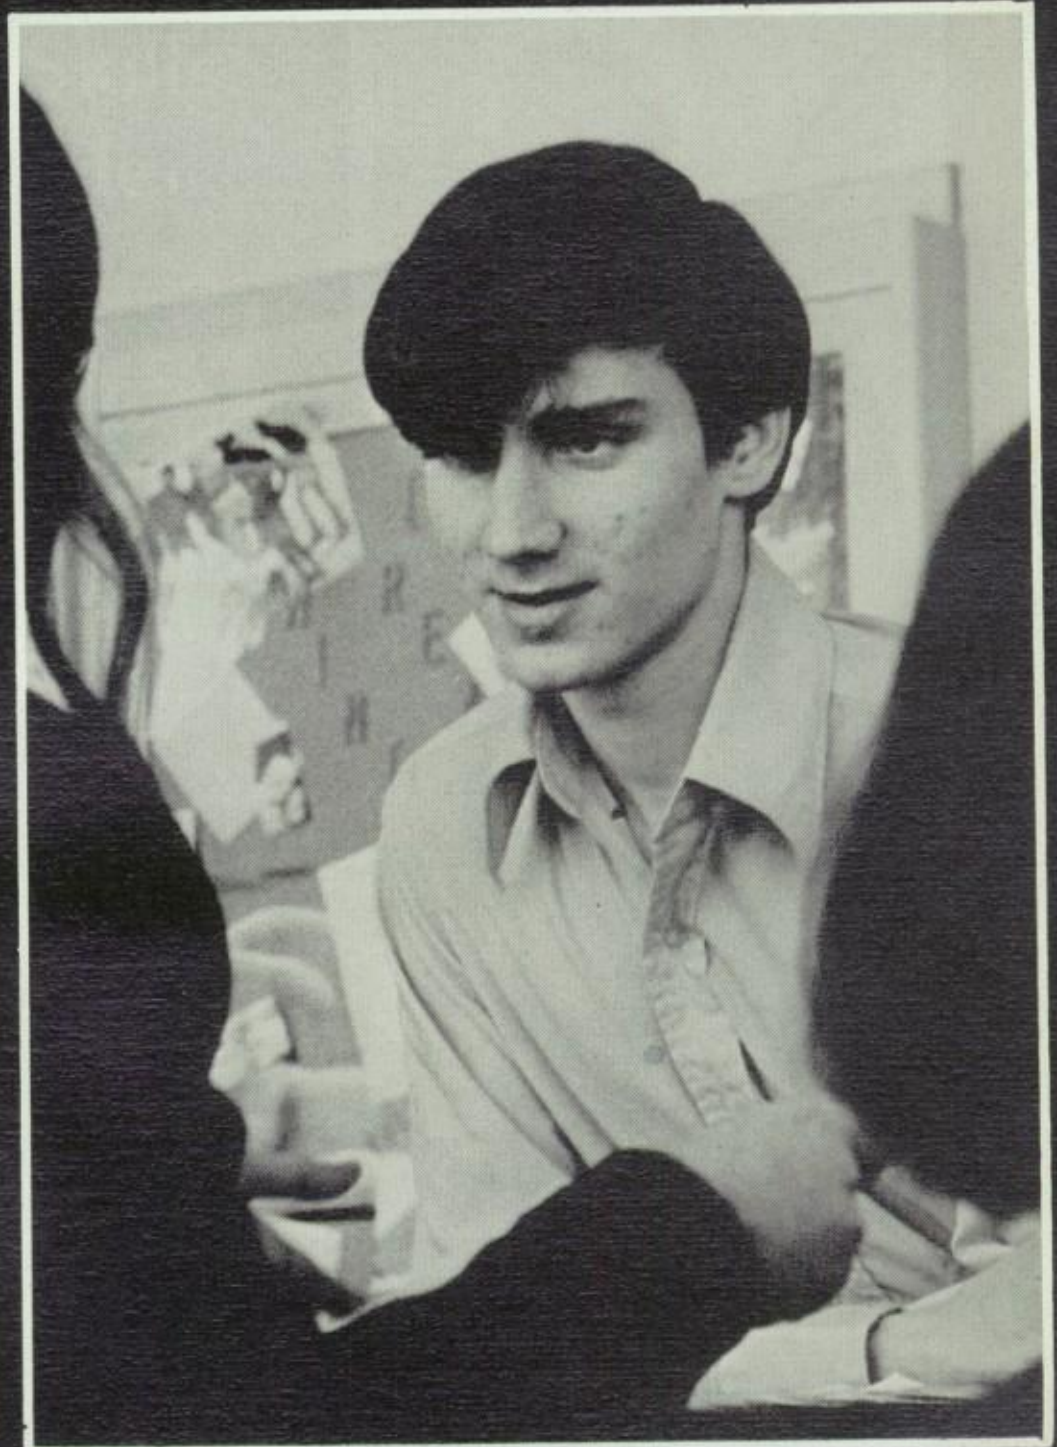

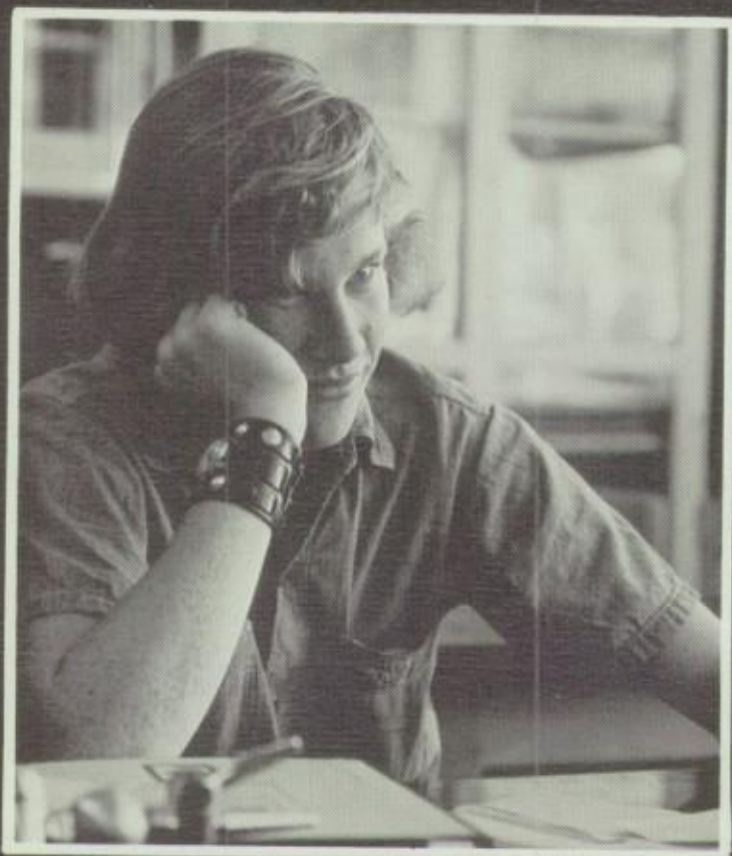

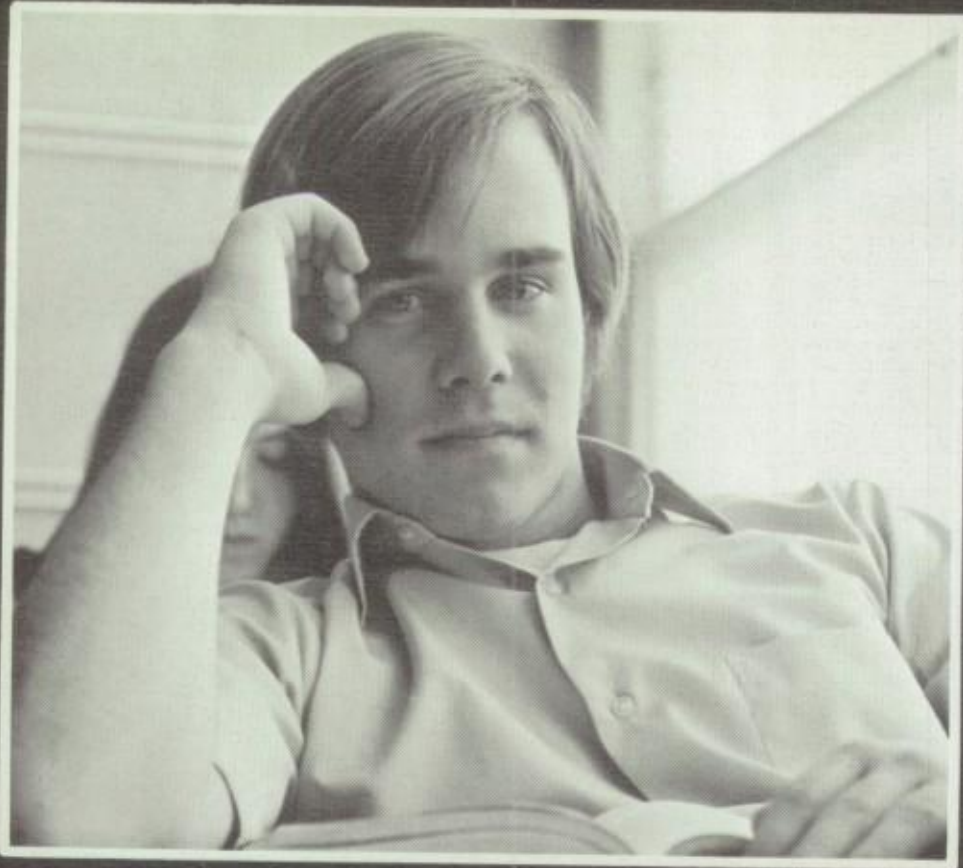

"Yes Pooh, I will be, really.
I promise I will be, Pooh."
"That's good," said Pooh.
"Pooh, promise you won't forget about me, ever. Not even when I'm a hundred."

Pooh thought for a little.
 "How old shall I be then?"
 "ninety-nine."
 Pooh nodded,
 "I promise,"
 he said.

"Pooh," said Christopher Robin earnestly, "if I — if I'm not quite — " he stopped and tried again — "Pooh, whatever happens, you will understand, won't you?"

"Understand what?"

"Oh, nothing." He laughed and jumped to his feet

"Come on."

"Where?" said Pooh.

"Anywhere," said Christopher Robin

Administration

Dear Members of the Class of 1972:

"Education must shift into the future tense." These are the very simple words — but simple words whose collective meaning is more powerful than the hydrogen bomb — which bring to a conclusion Chapter 18 of Alvin Tofler's book, Future Shock.

In meditating about what I might write, my eye was attracted to the cover of this book; and in recalling the author's message, I was haunted by a statement on the cover: "This book can help us survive our collision with tomorrow."

Putting together the quotations in the first two paragraphs above, I would like to paraphrase a combination of these with this resultant advice to the Class of 1972: To prepare yourselves for total survival — physically, mentally, emotionally — in the world of the 21st Century, each one of you must continue to pursue an educational program which will enable you to absorb the tremendous energy of that "collision with the future" awaiting you after you leave the halls of Exeter High School.

For some of you, this will mean an additional four years of post-secondary education. For others, it should mean a less formal, but nevertheless an ever ongoing pursuit of knowledge and skills, enabling you to adapt to occupations and life-styles now only in the think-tank stage of our sociologists, economists, and statesmen. Whatever form your continuing education may take, of this I am certain: my generation, fast moving into our December years, is looking to each one of you to come up with answers to the myriad of problems which are rapidly taking civilization as we know it on a collision path with future annihilation.

What is the Class of 1972 going to do about eliminating warfare as a means of settling international disputes? How will you prevent our affluent society from choking itself or poisoning itself by the polluted air we breathe and the infested water we drink? What sacrifices are each of you willing to make to help stabilize the burgeoning population statistics and guarantee your children and my grandchildren enough square footage of Mother Earth to afford a reasonable standard of living? Perhaps most important of all, what active role will you take in building bridges of understanding and love between your fellow humans whose race, religion and nationality are different from yours?

I am certain that the possession of an Exeter High School diploma does not qualify you to begin to solve these seemingly insurmountable problems. In fact, I confess that I must agree with the writer of Future Shock who alleges that "our schools face backward toward a dying system rather than forward to the emerging new society." But yet, on the other hand, I submit to you that the best advice I can give to the Class of 1972 is to chart a course of a life-long education, realizing that if any single member of your graduating class ceases learning to prepare himself for tomorrow's world, he also places every other member of your class in greater jeopardy as your generation surges forward with geometrically increasing speed toward that collision rendezvous with the future.

In his classic volume, The Outline of History, Herbert George Wells said that "human history becomes more and more a race between education and catastrophe." Mr. Wells wrote those words in 1920, two years before your high school principal — the writer of this message — was born. If it was true fifty years ago — in a world which could be smug in its ignorance of the still-to-be unleashed power of the atom and the future shock of the longest and costliest wars in our history — how much more of a truism is it today!

Class of 1972, you hold in your hands not only a diploma, but also a challenge which your faculty and loved ones place in your charge upon graduation. That challenge is this: step forward boldly into the future, equipped with the good education you now possess, determined to grow daily as you take on those skills and understandings which will avoid the catastrophies of the future and bring you into the brilliance of the glorious promise that awaits your mature years in the dawn of the 21st Century.

Good-bye, and God bless each one of you.

Sincerely,

Claude W. Dundore

Academics

The academic department at Exeter is continuously improving and increasing its curriculum, and this past school year has been a prime example. Changes have been made in various courses; new teachers have been added to the faculty; and students have a larger selection of courses from which to choose.

The introduction of the new English mini-courses has been the biggest improvement in the English department this year. Students are able to choose from 47 varied English courses during the school year. Each quarter a certain number of these courses are offered, from which the students can make a selection. Choices range from Vocational Forms and Vocabulary to literature courses such as Chaucer and Religious Literature. Students have reacted favorably to this new system in which sophomores, juniors and seniors are combined in English classes.

Since the English mini-courses proved successful, the history department is also contemplating a system similar to that of the English department. A four-part history course is already being offered to the seniors, but on a mandatory basis. If the new system is adopted, sophomores, juniors, and seniors would also have a wider selection of history courses from which to choose.

New subjects have also been introduced in the mathematics and science departments. The math department offers a Logic and Set Theory course to interested students with the proper pre-requisite. An innovative science course, the Howard Project physics course, is offered to members of the junior class. This class enables students to work independently, with certain requirements and regulations for each marking period.

In the business department many of the seniors participate in the work program. These students attend their required classes in the morning, and in the afternoon they begin work. This procedure provides experience and knowledge by enabling the students to practice what they are being taught in school.

The industrial arts and home economics programs are becoming more co-educational. More girls are choosing various industrial arts courses, and an increasing number of boys are showing interest in the home economics program. Both departments have many students who participate in fairs, shows, and exhibitions. These students have been well-prepared and guided in the preparations of their award winning projects.

There is also a growing interest in the fine arts department, as many students are choosing art and music as an elective or a major. The art students have received recognition for their work by having various projects displayed in public buildings around the community.

The Berks County Vo-Tech School East has prepared many of Exeter's students in certain vocational skills. These sophomores, juniors, and seniors attend specified classes at the Vo-Tech school in the morning and return to Exeter in the afternoon for the required academic courses. The training the students receive is beneficial to them when they pursue a career after high school.

New teachers have been added this year to many of the departments, including business, science, social studies, English, language, and undustrial arts. During the second semester a student may be taught by a student teacher, who is still attending a nearby college. These student teachers are given the opportunity to work with the teacher and the students in an actual classroom situation. The experience and knowledge that these students gain are important factors in the development of future teachers.

Finally, the faculty exist as leaders and models to their students both in and out of the classroom. Some teachers concern themselves with school activities and organizations, while others continue to further their education. Still others successfully combine marriage and a career.

The faculty's concern and involvement make them a vital part of the school's academic and social life.

Sports

The 1971-72 sports season was highlighted by the accomplishments of individuals and by team efforts.

The cheerleaders began their season with a session at summer camp, where they learned new cheers and exchanged ideas to improve the squad. Many changes were made this year. In addition to increased squad sizes, they added boy yell leaders, a mascot, and wrestling rooters. Through their work and enthusiasm, they boosted school spirit all year round.

The football team began its season with many disappointments, but finally came through with a 7-2 overall record, finishing second in the league.

Although the girls' hockey team was not as successful as they had hoped to be, their season was highlighted by two exciting games with their arch rival Governor Mifflin, the first of which ended in a tie.

The success of the cross country team can only be contributed to each individual member of the team, because of the individual titles won by them throughout their season.

The varsity basketball team, having lost no games, ended the season with a perfect league record, and went on to win the Berks County championship. After competing in inter-district play-offs, they finished with an overall 25-2 record. Individual recognition was given to Charlie Booker and Pete Yousaitis who were both chosen as all county basketball players, and to Pete who went on to be chosen for the second all state team.

The girls' basketball team also had a successful season. Through much hard work and the combined efforts of the team members, they were able to win the county co-championship, and go on to enter district competition.

Although the wrestling team did not have the successful season that the basketball teams had, the team members worked hard and the many underclassmen gained experience in the sport which will be helpful in the coming years.

The bowling team also consisted of a majority of underclassmen, who gained experience during this year's 10-6 season, and will return next year in hopes of doing even better.

The golf team had a very successful season this year, ending it with a 12-1 record. Individual and team accomplishments were accented at the county tournament when Chip Lutz, Lee King, and Tom Korinchock won the three man trophy, and with Chip placing first and Lee fourth, individually. These two also gained recognition in District III, when Chip took first and Lee took fifth, and when both went on to state competition.

The tennis team also ended the season with an excellent record of 15-1. At the county tournament, they went on to become champions with Mark Wesner winning the singles championship and Bart Ullrich and Jim Barrer winning the doubles trophy.

This year for the first time, a girls' tennis team was formed. They had a successful first season ending it with a 6-1 record.

The accomplishments of the 880 relay team highlighted the season of the track team. The relay team, recognized as the top in the county, went on to place third in the district and third in the state.

Like the boys', the girls' track season was highlighted by the accomplishments of individual team members, who worked to set individual records and make the season what it was.

Although the baseball team was not as successful as many of the spring teams, its season was not entirely a disappointment. The team lost many close games, and highlighted the season by defeating the Southern Division Champions, Oley.

The girls' softball team had a good season. Ending it with a 9-3 record, they placed second in the division behind Governor Mifflin.

Organizations

Organizations exist in the high school to expand curricular goals and to provide cultural and vocational experiences for all students. This year many clubs and organizations were awarded prizes and titles as a result of their projects.

The 1971 Pioneer was awarded a first place at the Columbia Scholastic Press Association competition in New York in November. The editor, advisor and several staff members attended the conference in New York as well. Throughout the year, staff members sold advertisements and books to make the cost of the production. A party at the end of the year celebrated the completion of the book.

Also, this year the Echo won a second place rating in competition in New York at the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Conference. The staff worked throughout the year to publish the monthly editions of the Echo which was provided at no cost to each student.

Thespian Troupe No. 1533 was also active in conferences and workshops. During the fall, the members sold pretzels to help finance a summer trip to Indiana. Members were active in school plays and musicals and competed in a play contest in New Hope in the spring.

The school's honorary National Honor Society attended a conference on education at Lehigh University. During the spring, juniors and seniors who have achieved honor roll standing throughout high school were inducted into the society.

The library staff assists the librarian in her duties — working at the desk, typing, and arranging books.

The audio visual staff aids the faculty with distributing equipment and setting up and showing films, filmstrips, and slides.

This year's student council used the new volunteer member system throughout the year. The grievance committee, a literary magazine named NICWE, and a curriculum study group were all new additions to the group. The council also started the changes in graduation procedure and supported a foreign exchange student.

The Brotherhood Club visited churches of different denominations and participated in services throughout the year. They raised money for their service projects and collected clothes for Appalachia. Mrs. Poch from India addressed the club at an evening meeting.

The Y-Teens continued their traditional gift giving to the underprivileged this year. The presentations took place both at Halloween and Christmas. The annual sleepover once again provided much fun for the members. Donations from the club treasury were given to the YWCA's 75th anniversary and also were given to help support a teenage Indian girl.

Another service-minded club, the Key Club, attended their usual convention in Pittsburg. They had their annual road rally, the unusual turkey raffle, supported the Pagoda walkabout, and once again collected for the Heart Fund. They sponsored chartered buses to the boy's basketball district play-offs games, and concluded their year with their annual Mayday stands.

A marquee was purchased by the Hi-Y as a gift to the school this year. They raised money by having a coffee stand at football games and also combined with the F.T.A. in a winter cake sale.

The F.T.A. spent their year preparing for future education by observing classes at both Albright and Kutztown. The year was accented by a program presented by the president of E.T.E.A.

The highlights of this year's M.C.C. were trips to the Hershey Medical Center and the Reading Rehabilitation Center. The club raised money in a joint Italian sandwich sale with F.T.A.

The annual Night of Music was once again presented by this year's chorus. They also participated in an exchange program with Columbia High School and took part in this musical "Once Upon a Mattress."

The band also held a Night of Music, featuring the bandfront and color guard, who earned money for their costumes by selling, candy, candles, and baked goods. They participated in the University of Pennsylvania band day and inspired school spirit once again at football and basketball games.

The organizations of the school as well as the activities and curricular offerings form a vital part of the students' growth.

Activities

Activities in 1972 reflected both the traditional and the innovative. Both the chorus and the band continued the traditions of individual nights of music with the exception of a small group of band members who played three Christmas tunes at the choral night of music, and a few chorus members who helped with the singing of "Applause" at the band's concert.

The chorus celebrated the Christmas season with its renditions of carols and hymns, beginning its program with a candlelight procession to the singing of "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful." The concert included several other Christmas numbers and ended with the singing of "Silent Night."

The band's annual concert opened the spring season with a program of show tunes, marches and popular music. During the second half of the band program the band front was featured doing dance routines and twirling numbers as some of the band played. The night of music drew to a close as the entire band front entered the auditorium and stage for the playing of the Alma Mater.

Drama this year was also a mixture of the old and the new, involving members of both the junior and senior classes. The classes combined to put on two plays this year. The first production was "Because Their Hearts Were Pure" which featured the traditional villain and hero of melodrama. The second production was of a more serious nature. As a change of pace, the classes presented a drama "David and Lisa" which was concerned mainly with a mental illness and the developing trust and friendship of two disturbed adolescents.

The final student production of the season combined both musical and dramatic talents to present the spring musical. This year the musical was "Once Upon a Mattress", a fairy tale story of the search for the perfect princess to marry the young prince of the country.

The innovation in play production this year involved the first presentation of an Exeter Teachers Education Association play. The play "Cheaper by the Dozen" was presented on February 10 and 11, 1972, and gave the teachers a chance to show their talent to raise the $700 which was given for the scholarship fund.

Still another traditional activity, the Junior-Senior Prom, experienced moments of the innovative as it moved back to the Reading Country Club this year. For the senior class the evening began with a senior dinner before the prom which was also held at the country club. This year's prom presented by the junior class for the senior class on May 6, 1972, revolved around the theme "Color My World". Following the prom an after prom party was held at the Bowl-A-Rama, consisting of music, bowling and finally breakfast.

Finally, May Day reflected the abandoning of tradition when the pageant and traditional march in honor of the girls of the senior class was replaced by an all-school sports day. Competition was held in events such as volleyball, relays, archery, track events and the tug of war. Participants strove to win points for their classes and points were totaled to determine which of the Classes, sophomore, junior or senior, would win the trophy awarded.

This was a year of activities which was marked by both the old and the new, and was truly a rewarding one for all who participated.

Awards

Many Exeter students participate in academic and athletic school activities where they earn awards. These awards range from plaques to trophies, from certificates to the right to advance to the next competition. The physical award is usually presented to the school, but the memories and the experiences remain forever with the individual.

Chronologically, the football season was the first to bring an award to a group of students and to the school they represented. Seniors Ken Lakin, John Levandowski, John D'Augustine, Scott Toole, and Mike Nowotorski were all selected to the All-League team at the end of the season. Ken Lakin received individual recognition when he was elected to the All-County team.

In another fall sport, Jeff Bivans and Bill Mabon won the right to participate in the State Cross Country meet.

In a slightly different field, Eve Youngerman represented Exeter in the Berks County Junior Miss Pageant at Schuylkill Valley.

The winter sports season was highlighted by the boys' and girls' basketball teams who represented Exeter in a county and district play. After sharing the championship of Division III with Governor Mifflin, the girls went on to the quarter finals in District III.

The boys were also piling up the awards. The team won the Eastern Division and County Championships. They then advanced to the District B semi-finals. Pete Yousaitis won individual recognition when he won a place on the All-County team and on the State second team.

When warmer weather approached, the county band and chorus members were selected. This year Exeter was represented by students on all levels from county to regional. County band members included both juniors and seniors, while county chorus included students from all three high school classes.

Representatives to county band included Cathy Eveland, Lesley Dunkelberger, Craig Rimby, Ginger Gerhart, Ira Kleinsmith, and Robert Eschleman. Of this group junior Craig Rimby went on to District Band.

Other musical students who participated in county chorus were Phyllis Mountz, Brian Schaeffer, Cathy Eveland, Lesley Dunkelberger, Richard Gilbert, and Robert Eschelman. Brian Schaeffer and Brenda Doaty then went on to District Chorus, while Brenda represented Exeter in the Region II State Chorus.

Before the spring sports' season began, academic awards were presented to several students. Joe Marinucci, Robin Russell, and Ann Eckenroth were all Merit Scholarship semi-finalists.

In a similar effort, Anne Lubas was announced as a nationwide finalist in the Betty Crocker Homemaking Contest.

On a local level, Jeff Lengel and Steve Ginader represented Exeter at Harrisburg in the annual Youth in Government Day.

Also at Harrisburg, Kathy Gajewski, Gail Valteau, Rosemary Rhoads, and Sue Newton were presented with ribbons at the Farm Show.

Spring sports once again entitled Exeter to a string of awards. Both individual and team championships awarded the students' efforts. The boys' tennis team retired the three-legged county trophy. Jim Barrer and Bart Ullrich retired the county doubles' trophy at the same time. These awards were followed by the county single's trophy, won by Mark Wesner.

The tennis team's efforts were equaled by the golf team's which won both the Eastern Division and Berks County championships. The team effort was highlighted by Chip Lutz and Lee King who both qualified for participation in state play.

In another spring sport, Kris Bankes broke the 880 record at the Berks County meet, while the 880 relay team consisting of Rick Wegman, John D'Augustine, Scott Hafer, and Fred Loness broke the county record in their event. Jeff Bivans won individual recognition when he won the invitational mile at the Venzke Relays.

Final academic recognition is awarded to the ten seniors who have achieved the best scholastic records. In 1972's graduating class, the top ten students were Barbara Barrett, Ann Eckenroth, Steve Goldstein, Steve Ginader, Penny Kline, Jeff Lengel, Wendy Miller, Sue Rimby, Robin Russell, and Amy Spies.

Underclassmen

A large part of the student body is made up of underclassmen. Along with the senior class, sophomores and juniors participate in many school sponsored activities such as band, chorus, and various sports. Although often combined, each class also has its individual class meetings and responsibilities.

During their first year at the high school, the sophomore class encountered many new experiences. For the first time, they have been able to choose their own courses and have become familiar with the high school policy of early dismissal, both of which were a great change from the junior high school's rules to which they were accustomed. At the first sophomore class meeting, they held their election of officers and were informed about paying class dues. As officers they elected Bill Mabon, president and Debbie Makuch as vice-president. For their secretary they chose Sharon Kemp and for treasurer, Steve Pauley. The purpose of their second class meeting was to discuss the purchase of class jackets. It was decided that they would buy lined nylon windbreakers, which would be personalized, for their class. Since the time of the last meeting, a committee of sophomore class members was formed to arrange a class picnic for the sophomores. The class plans to hold this picnic on the twentieth of June at French Creek State Park. All sophomores and their guests were invited to attend the picnic at the price of one dollar a ticket to cover the cost of the food.

Juniors who have spent their second year at the high school have already become acquainted with it and its activities. The junior class also held a class meeting at the beginning of the school year for the purpose of electing officers. As their president they elected Randy Kleinsmith, and as vice-president, Brenda Doaty, while the office of the secretary was filled by Peggy Darlington and that of the treasurer, by Sharon Fisher. Throughout the school year the junior class was involved in several projects. One of these, a money making project, was a bake sale which was held in an attempt to earn money by selling cookies, cakes and other homemade baked goods. Another project undertaken by the junior class was that of planning the junior-senior prom which was held at the Reading Country Club on the sixth of May. In decorating for the prom, they constructed a large multicolored globe which had adjacent to it two fountains. These fountains and globe, along with the table decorations reflected the theme of the prom which was "Colour My World". The centerpiece on each of the tables consisted of an artist's pallet and a candle surrounded by the senior class flower, yellow baby roses. The prom was followed by a party at Bowl-A-Rama where bowling and billards were enjoyed. Refreshments were served and there was music by "Auburn".

Members of both the sophomore and junior classes combined to participate in commencement exercises for the seniors held on the ninth of June. These classes were represented by those who played in the band, and the junior class itself was represented by the marshalls, Carmen Morrison and Leslie Dunkelberger.

The two years of high school experiences in which the juniors have participated will help them in their senior year. The responsibilities they have faced as organizational officers, as students, as committee members, as athletes, and as citizens will stand them in good stead as they approach their last year in high school.

Seniors

As in past years, the senior class of 1972 has attempted to leave something of itself behind after graduation.

Attempts to change and improve the baccalaureate service and commencement highlight the class's achievements. Many suggestions were made by members of the class. To improve the baccalaureate service it was suggested that the service be held outside or in the school auditorium where more of the various religions of members of the senior class could be represented. This idea was discussed with the ministry in charge of the baccalaureate service. Ideas to improve commencement included eliminating a guest speaker so that students who wished to could speak on a subject pertaining to the senior class, doing away with the wearing of caps and gowns, and changing the manner in which diplomas are handed out to emphasize the importance of the event and of each individual student. A committee of senior class members worked to make possible some of these much needed changes for graduation and were able to succeed in eliminating a guest speaker and giving seniors an opportunity to speak to their peers at commencement.

The senior class chose as its motto "Peace is our goal, love for mankind our tool", and the class colors were reflected in the class flowers which were blue carnations and yellow roses.

Members of the senior class participated in many programs and activities in addition to their studies. The senior class was well represented in sports, in band, in chorus and in the many clubs around the school. Many of the seniors in the business department were able to incorporate their studies and working through the work program, where they take required courses in the mornings and in the afternoon go to work in various businesses in the area. One program in which the entire senior class was involved was the Aces program. This program was associated with the economics course that all seniors are required to take. It was divided into three parts. In the first part of the program a representative from Aces spoke to the senior class and brought with him a film dealing with the American economic structure. The second part consisted of trips to many business in the area such as Western Electric, the Reading Eagle-Times and several offices. Students toured these businesses to see how they operate and the part they play in the economic structure of the community. In the third part, representatives from the businesses came to speak to students who have toured their particular businesses. At that time students were free to ask any questions they had involving the places they had been and things they had seen.

Another activity that the senior class was involved in was the junior senior prom. The theme of the prom presented for the seniors by the junior class was "Color My World." It was held on May 6, 1972 at the Reading Country Club and began at 6:30. All seniors and their guests were invited to attend and had a choice of Filet mignon or Assorted Seafood for their meal. Between the dinner and the prom, seniors and their guests were entertained by their fellow classmates.

The senior class of 1972 will be remembered for its achievements and perhaps most of all for the changes it has set in motion and in this way has left a lasting impression on the school.

The 1971-1972 exchange student, Saul Reynoso from Mexico, acquainted his fellow students with a foreign land.

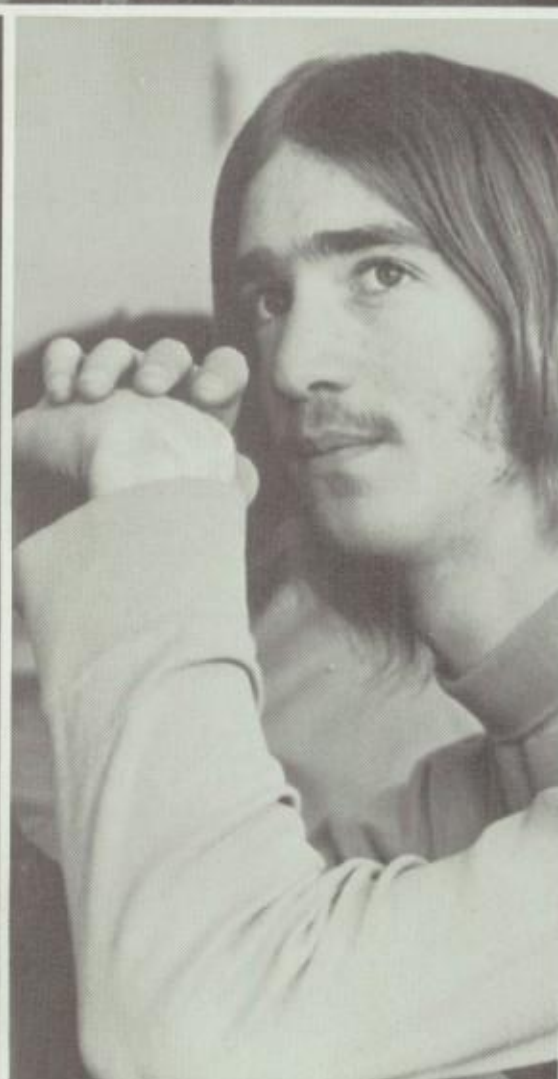

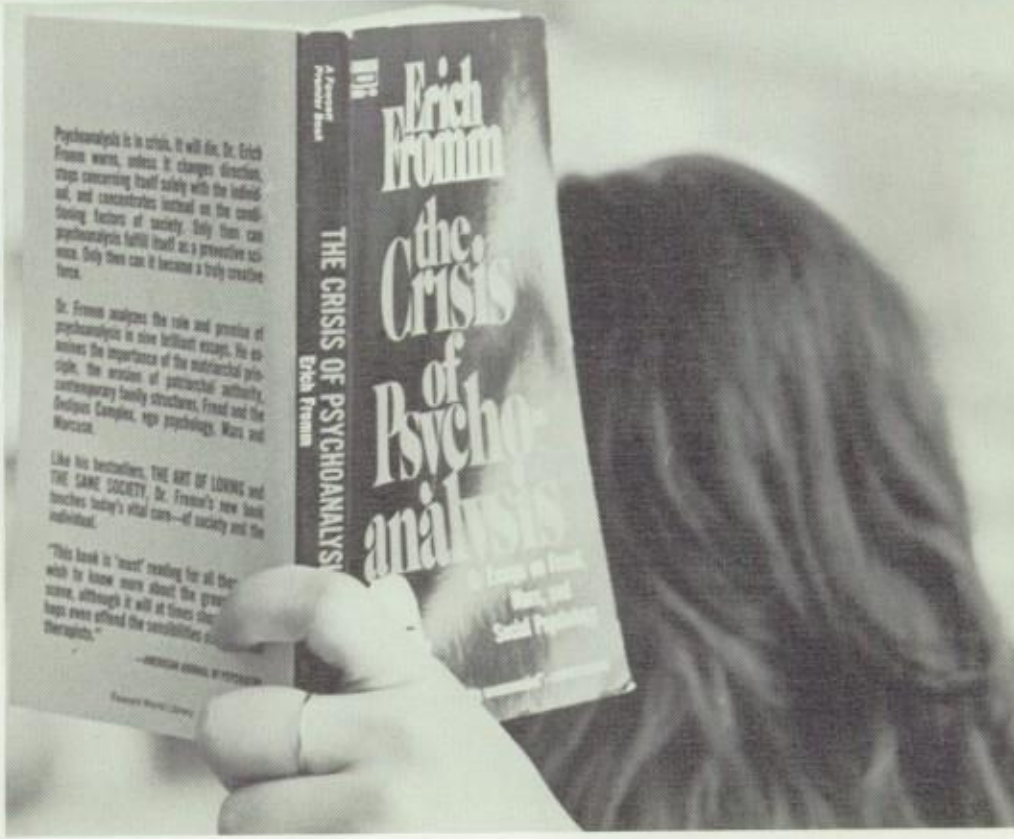

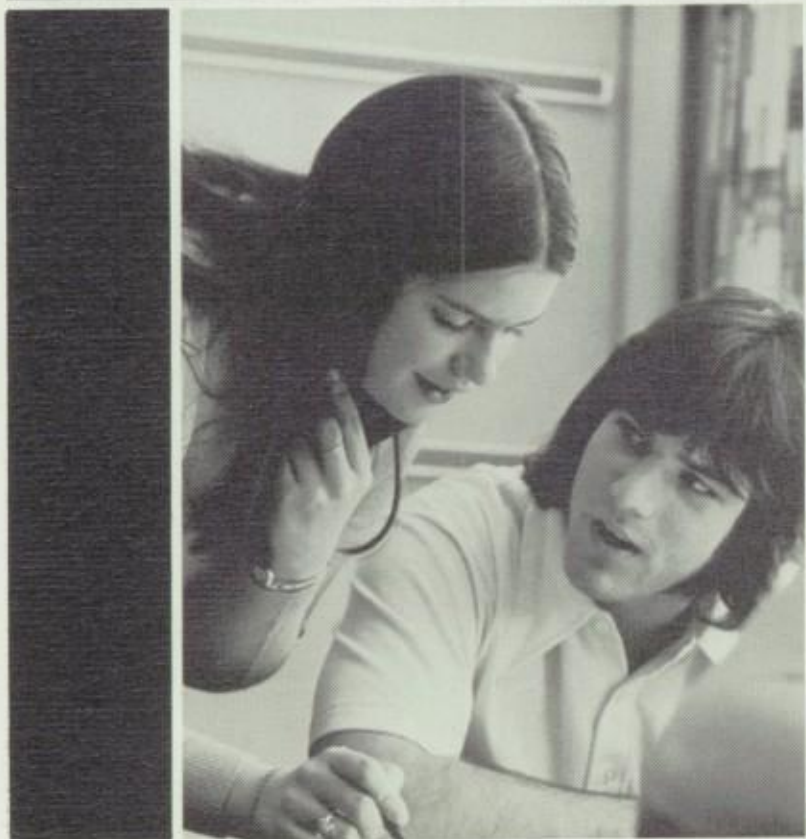

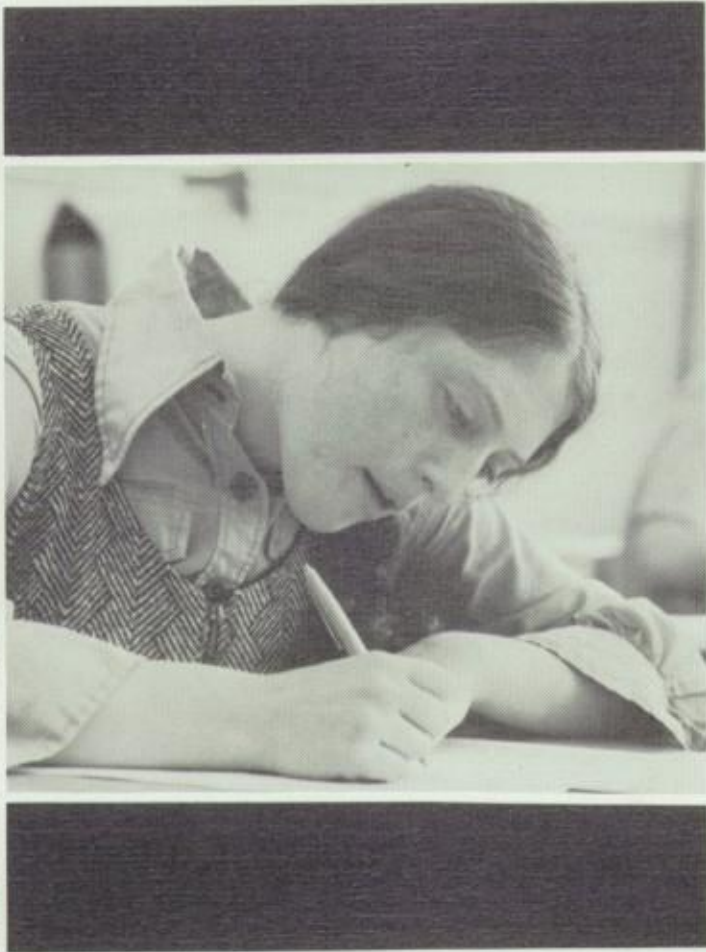

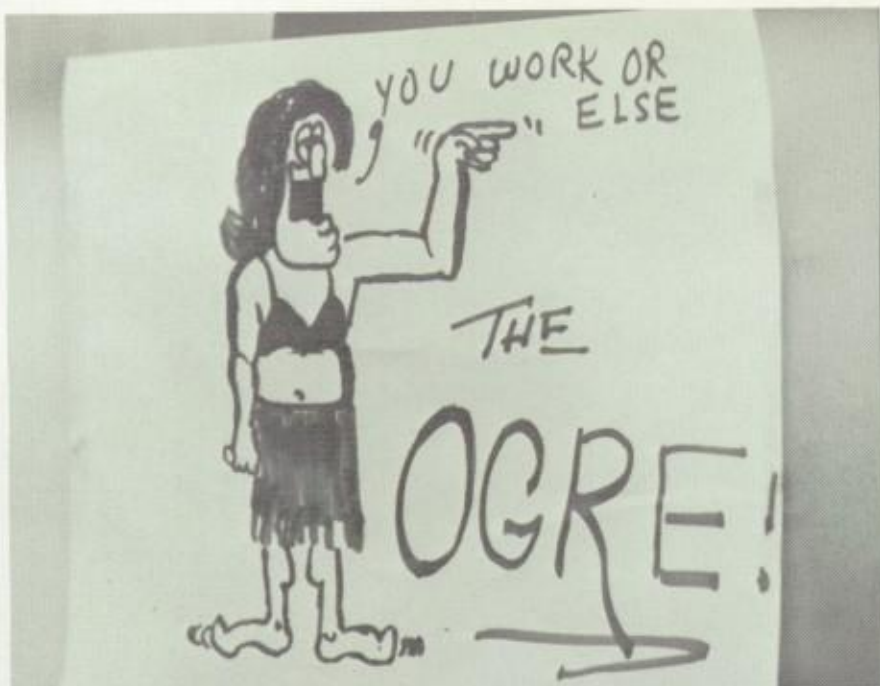

Le DeOliveira visited Gerri Hydock's family for several months in the beginning of the school year.

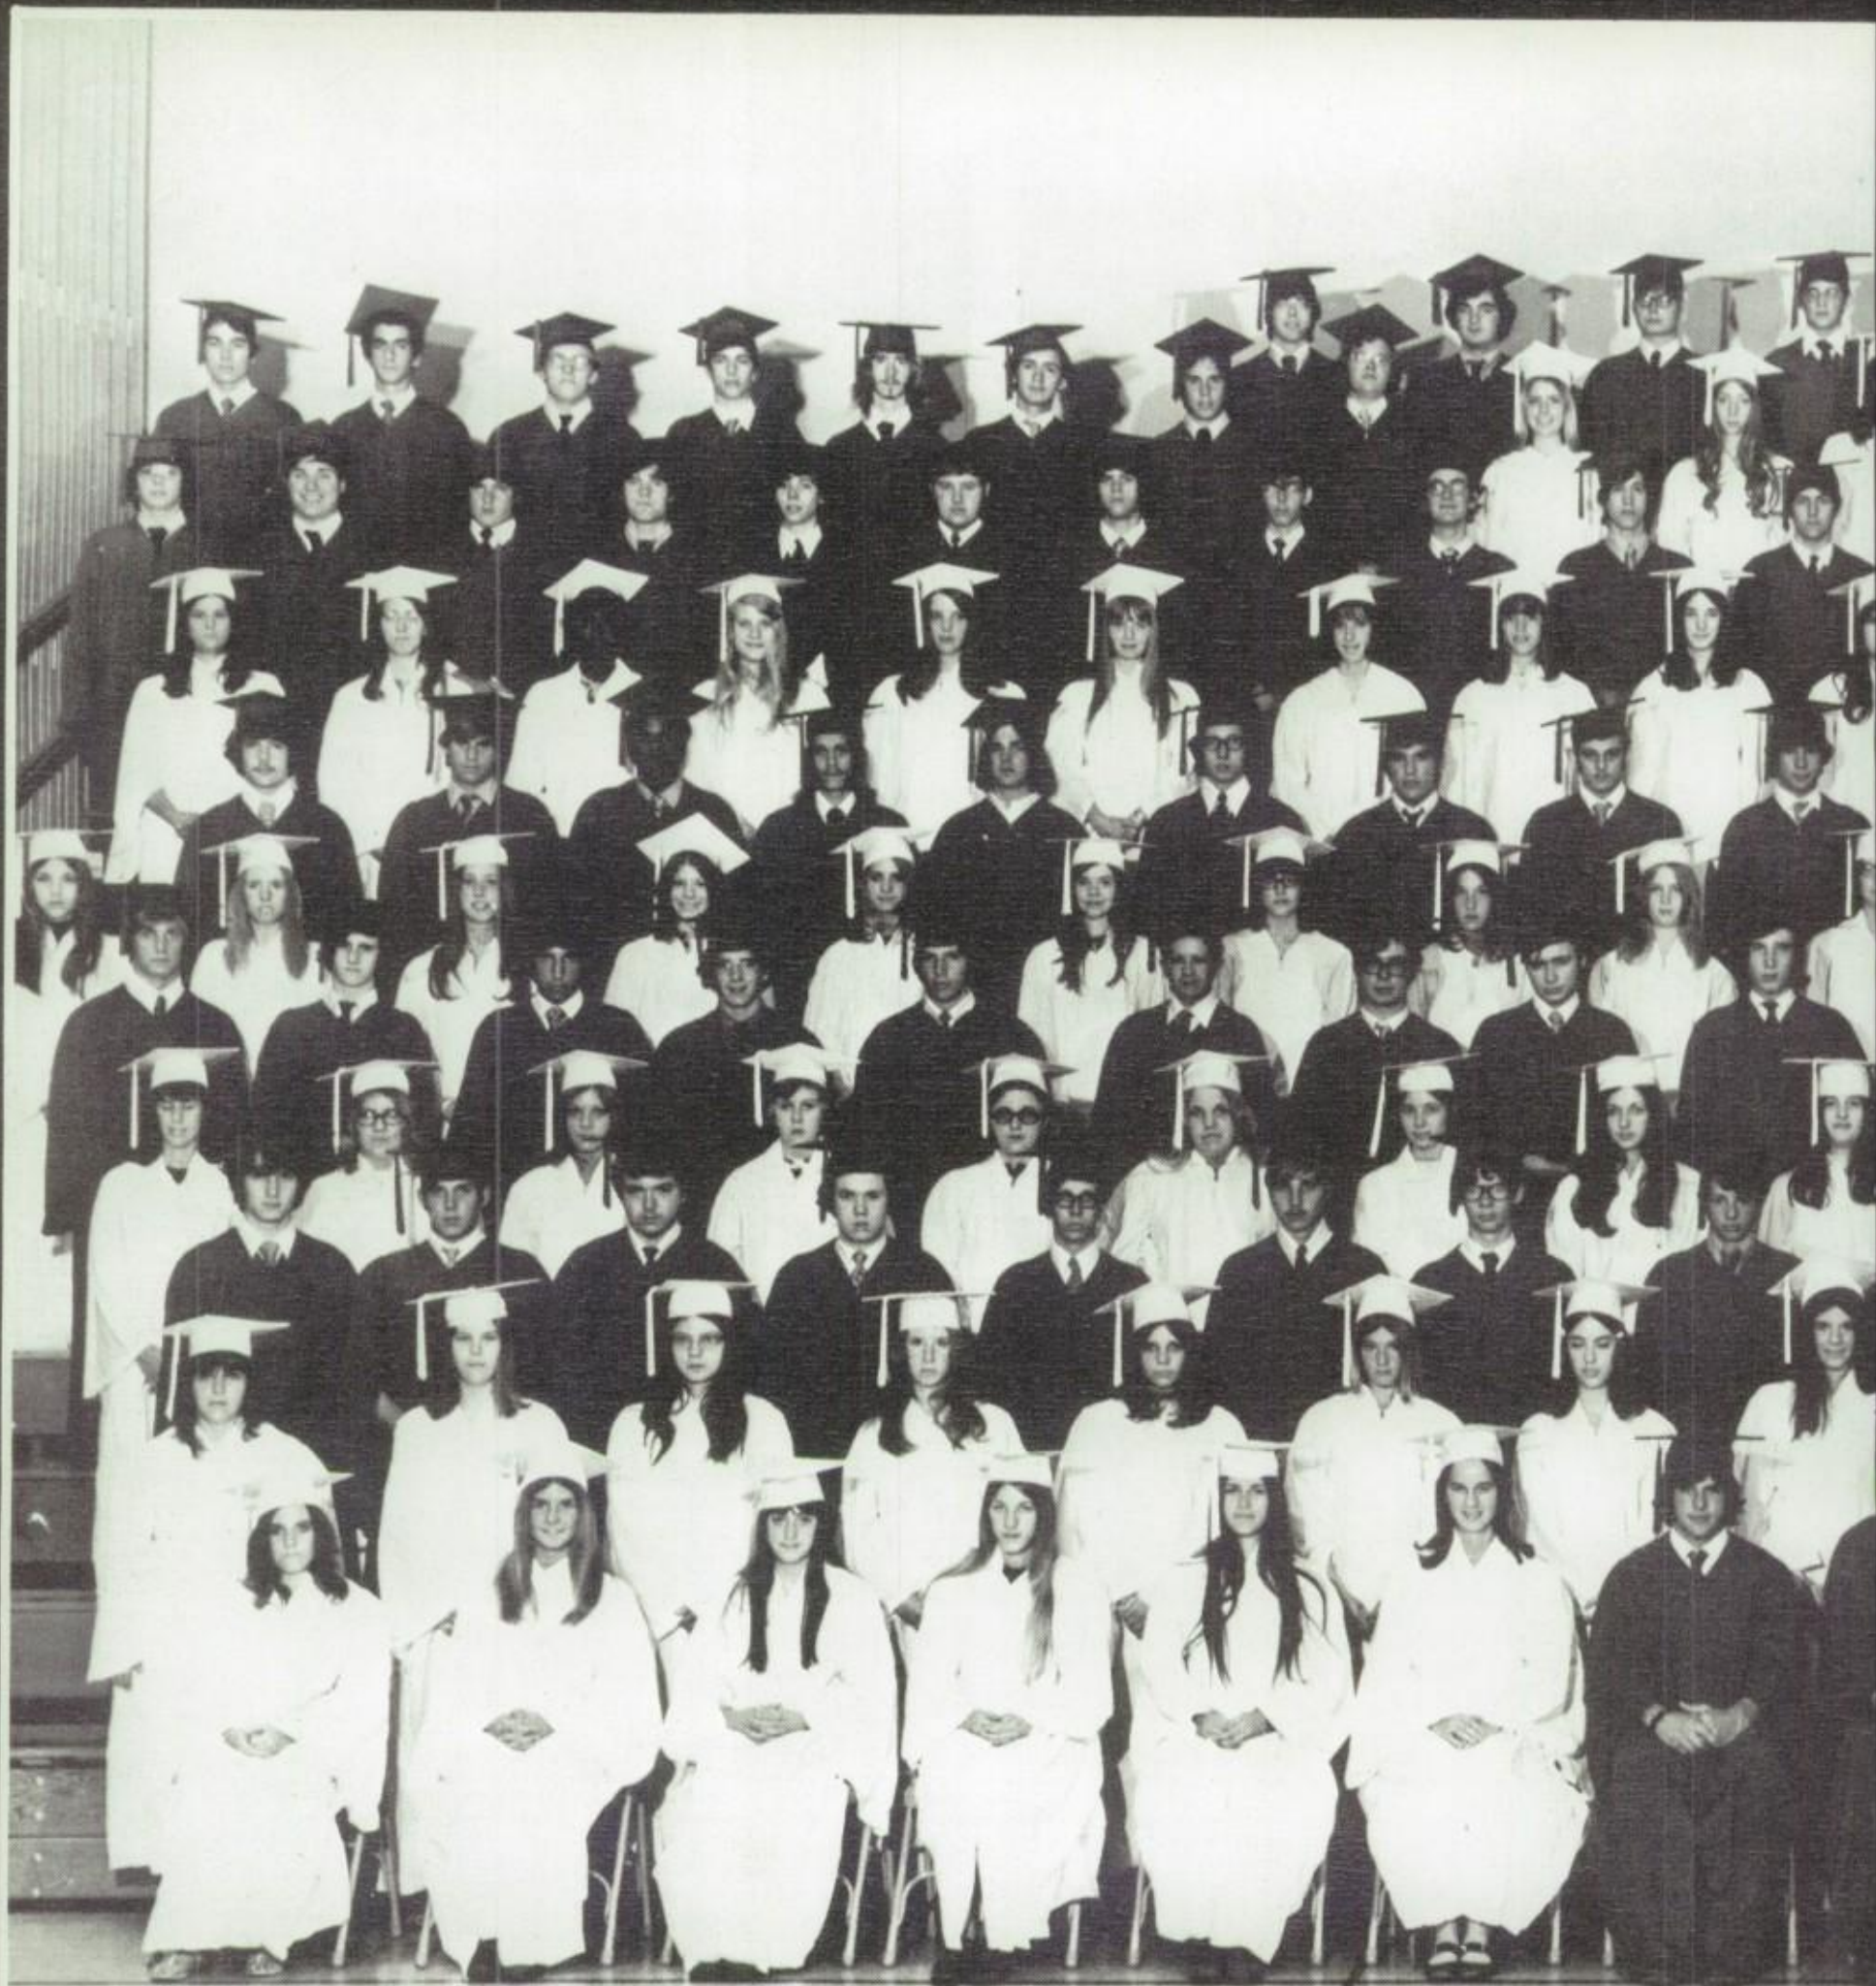

Peace Is Our Goal; Love Of Mankind Our Tool

CLOCKWISE; president Elizabeth Leinbach, v-president Jeffrey Lengel, advisor Harry Boyer, treasurer Craig Gaul, secretary John D'Augustine.

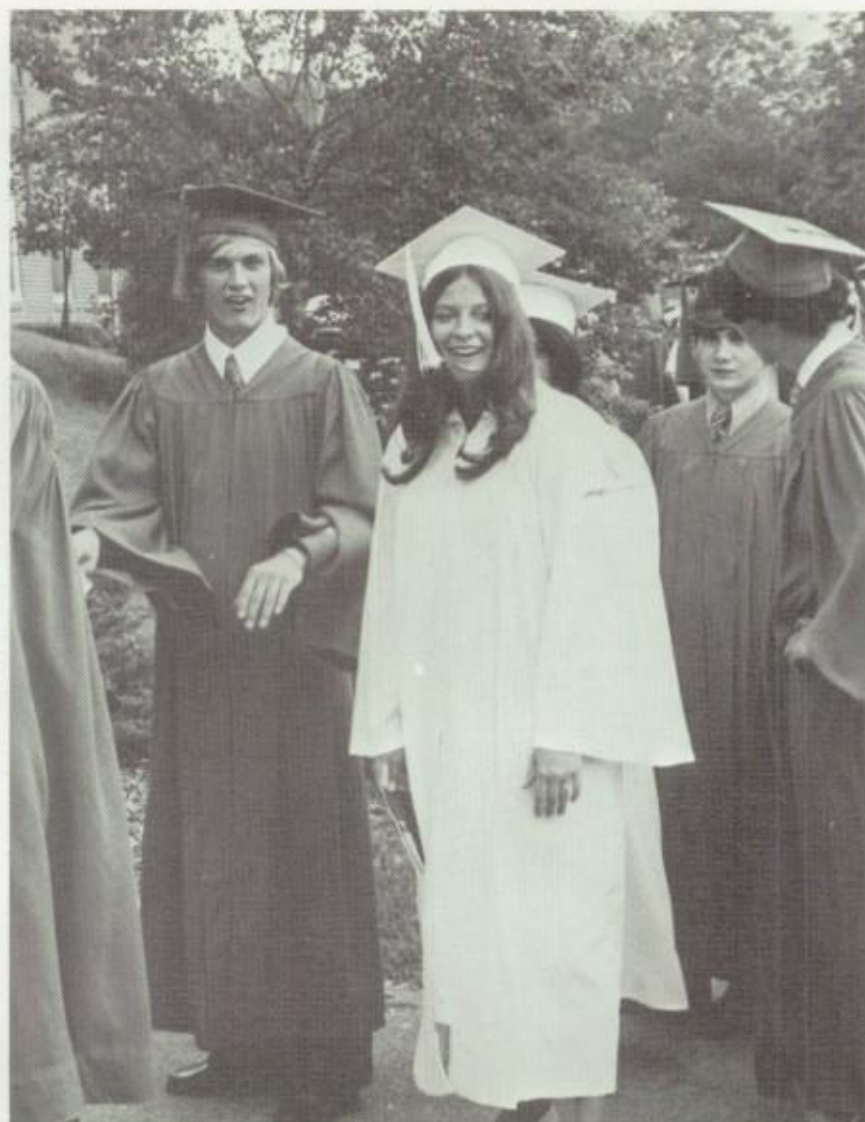

The seniors process into the Schwarzwald United Church of Christ.

Kim Petsch and Carol Hughes enjoy a last remark as they enter the church.

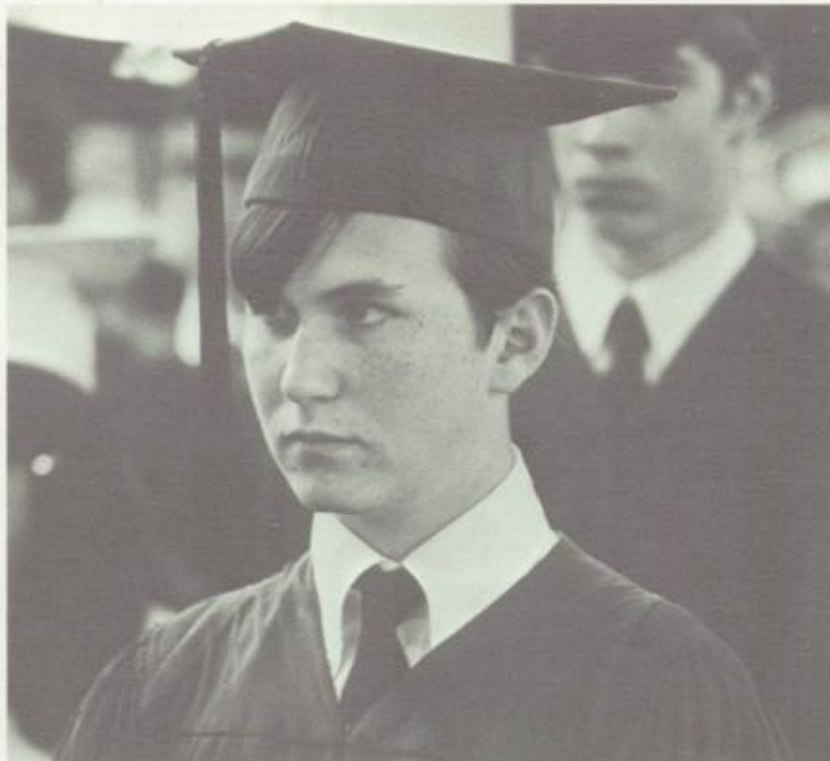

Baccalaureate — 1972

"Lead on O King Eternal" is sung by the entire class of 1972 as part of the annual baccalaureate service.

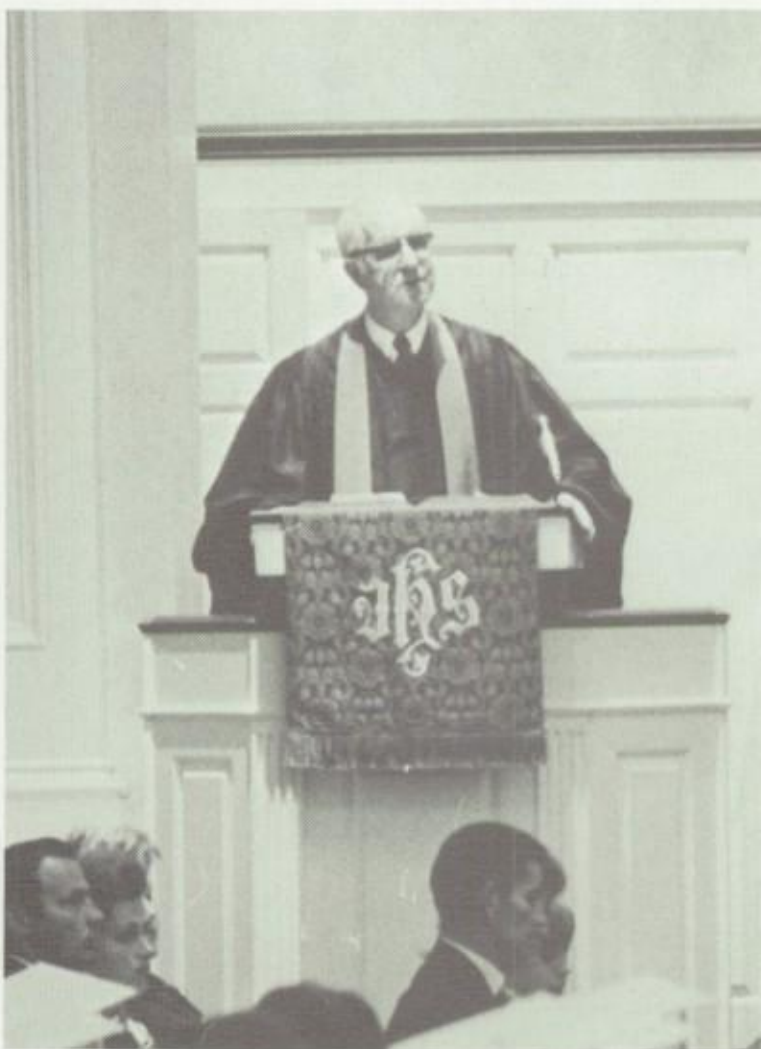

Pastor Harding pronounces the benediction at the 1972 services.

Lester Armagost listens attentively to the scripture lesson.

Seniors bow their heads for the closing prayer and the Lord's Prayer.

"For the Beauty of the Earth" is sung by Debi Baldassar.

The class of 1972 joins their parents and friends in singing the alma mater at the conclusion of the commencement service.

Seniors Innovate New Graduation Procedures

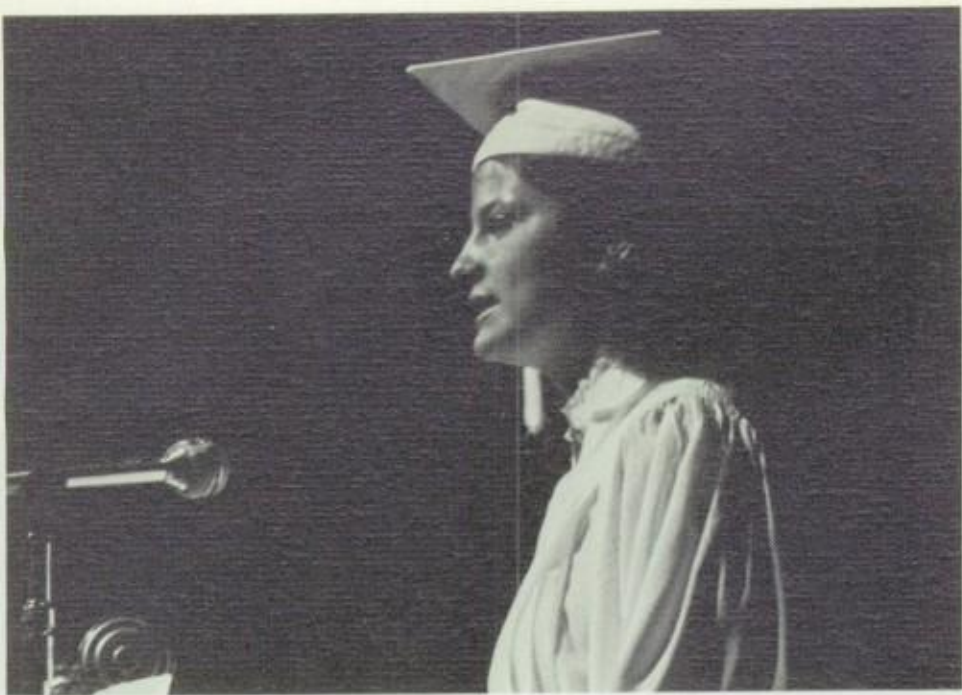

As the last speaker, Susan Rimby asks the graduates "Where is Our Motivation?"

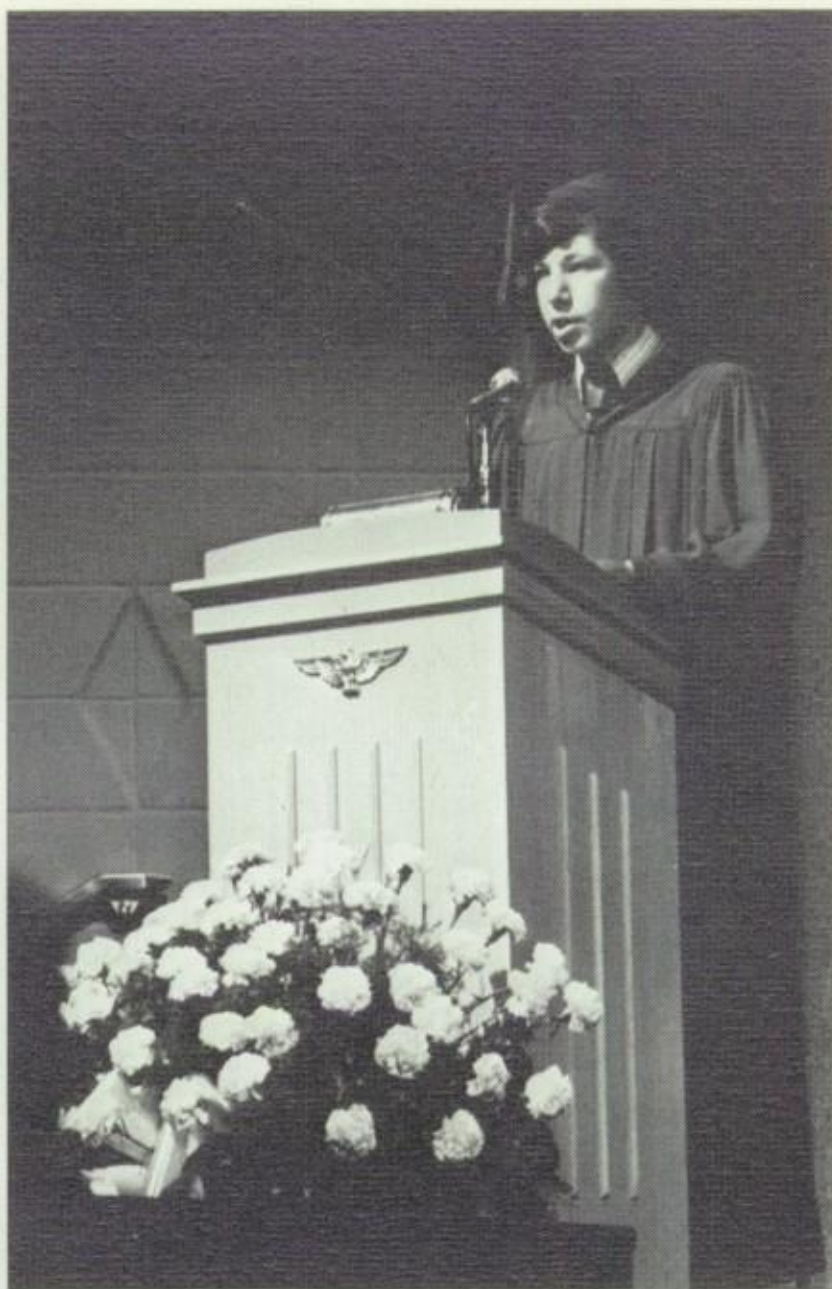

Senior class president Liz Leinbach welcomes the audience to the junior high.

The commencement band plays "War March of the Priests" as the graduates enter.

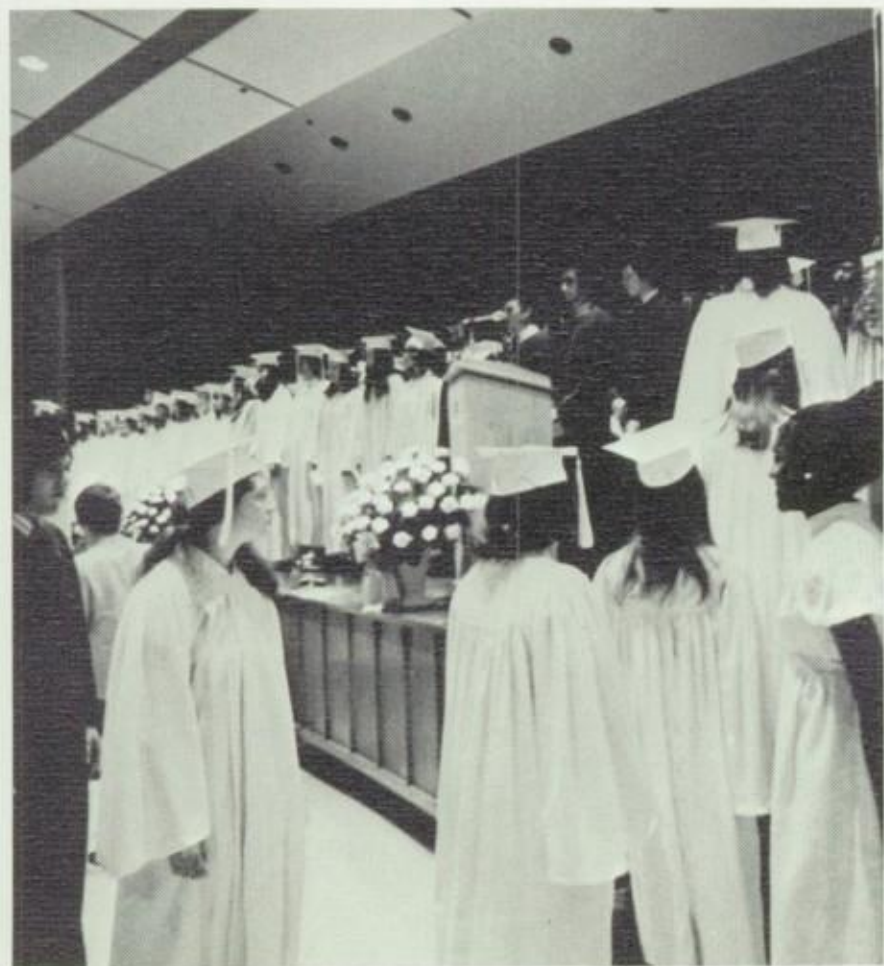

"Who Are We Now?" asks Carol Hughes of the graduation class.

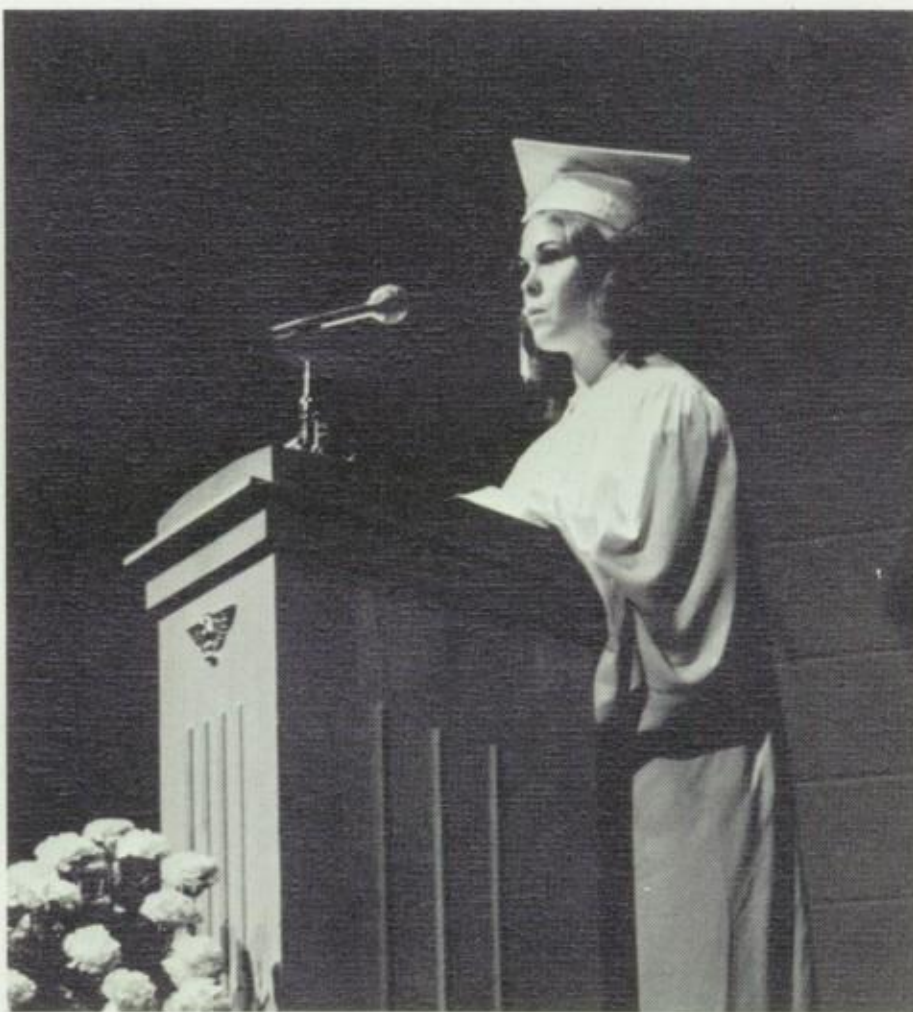

"How is Exeter Changing?" is Steve Goldstein's concern in his address.

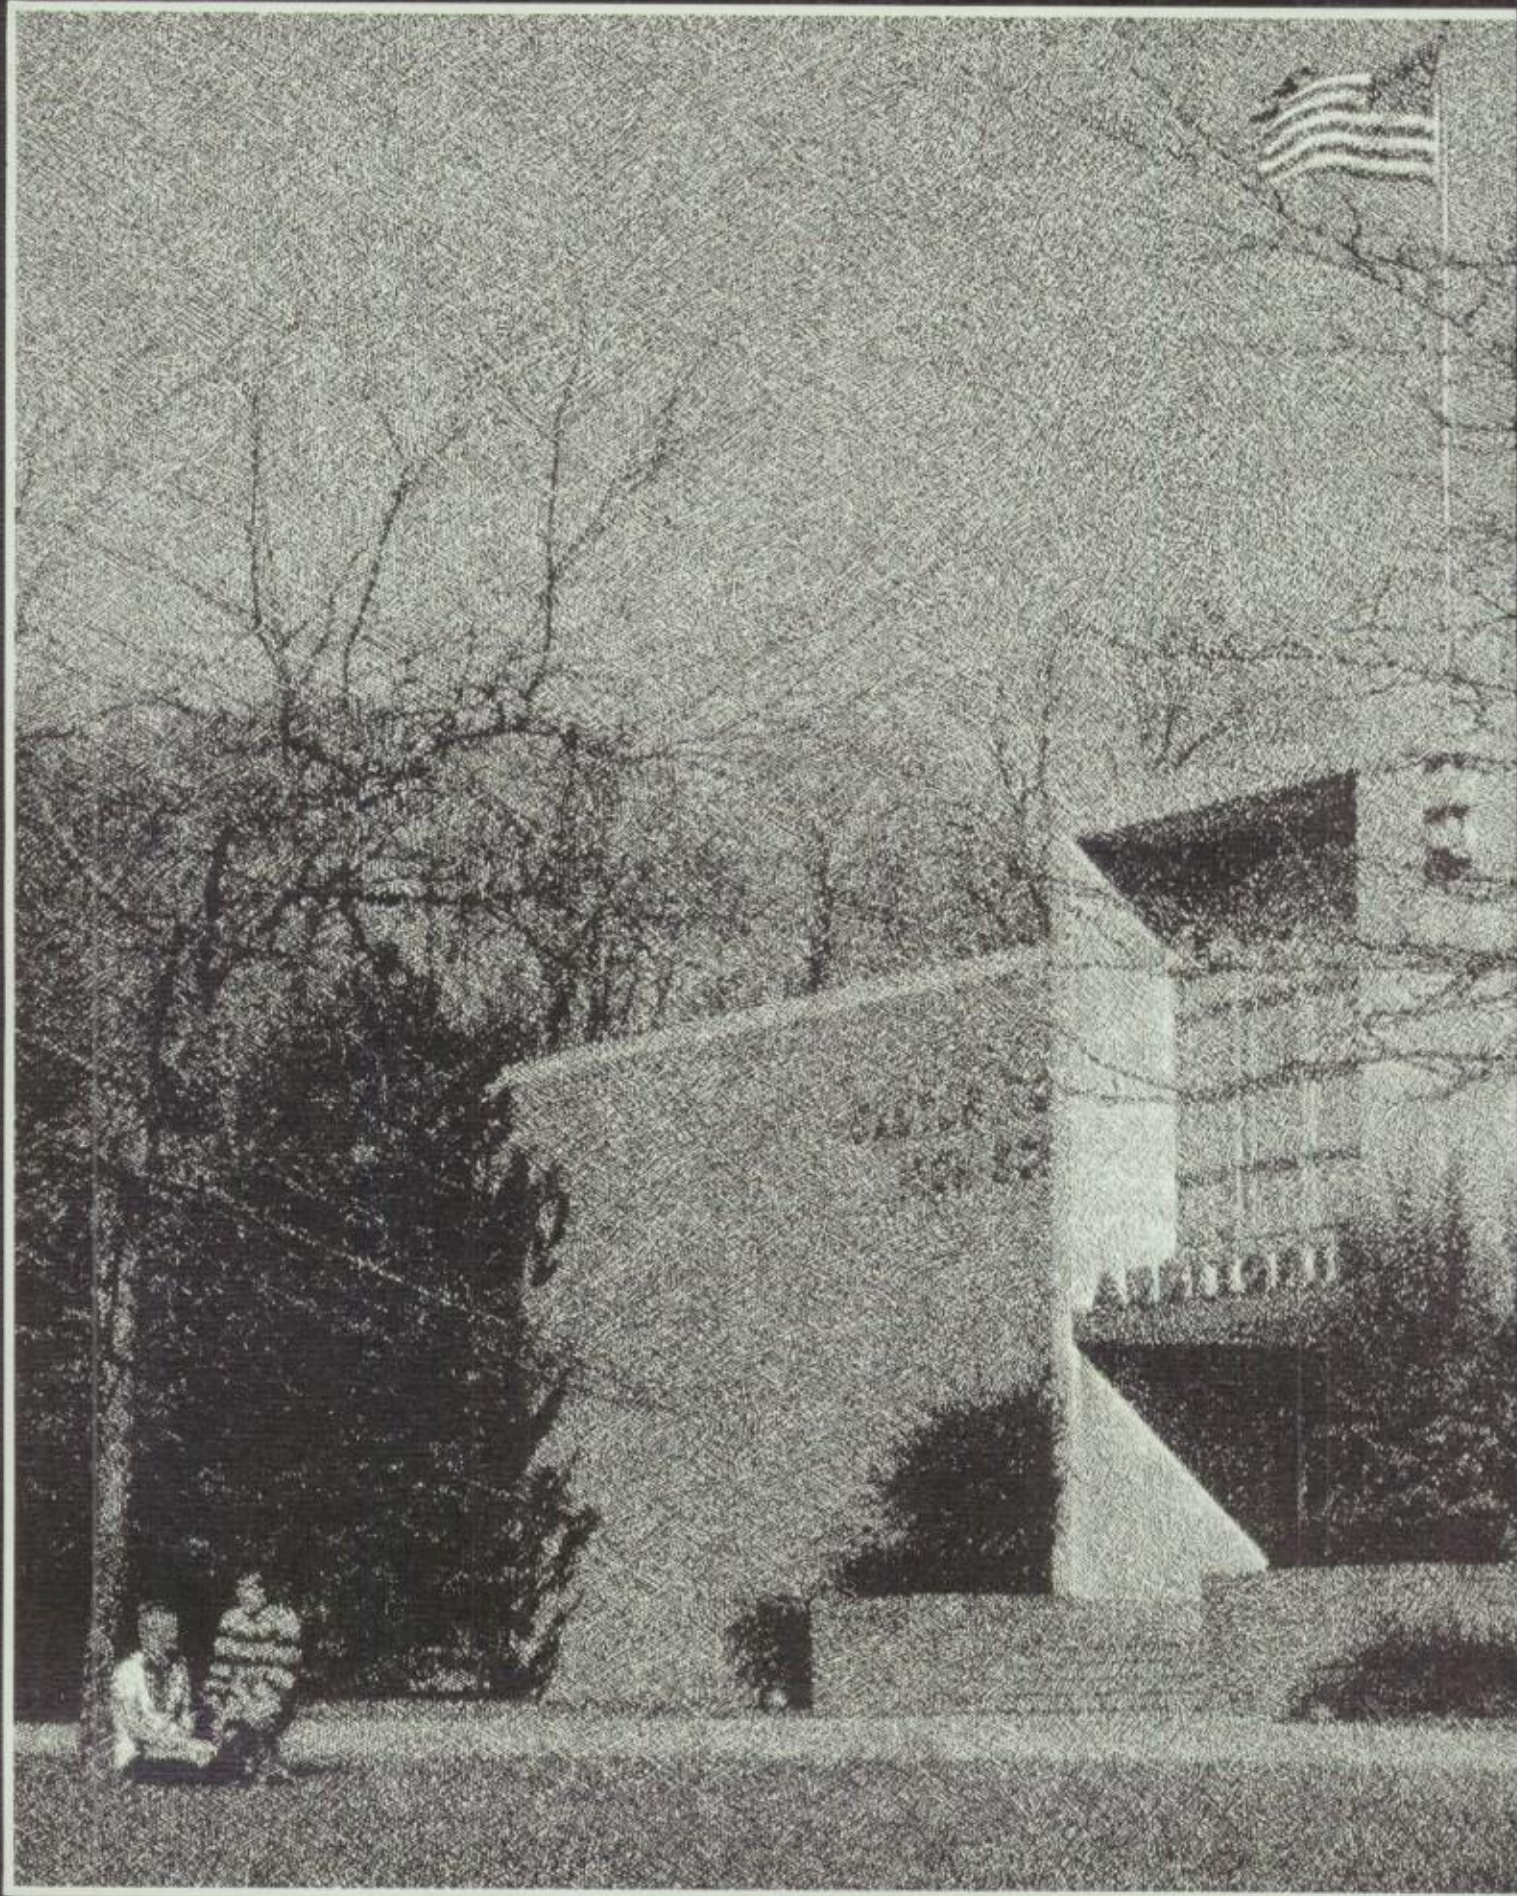

Penny Kline wonders "Is Education Accomplishing What It Should?"

Junior Carmen Morrison marshals the entering seniors to their places on stage.

The very personal "Where Do We Go From Here?" is asked by Donna Geiger.

Jo,

To a really nice underclassman
I met in sports. Last year wasn't too good because there were some problems, but ~~if~~^{maybe} let's forget them and have a great year this year. Remember all the fun we had in hockey, basketball, softball, and Y-Teens. Too bad we couldn't get more championships Maybe this year. Good Luck in the Future in whatever you attempt.

Keep the Peace and
The Faith

of? So a really good friend who likes to go shopping alot.
The dumb things we did
could fill a million pages
but, funny, I can't find the words to fill one. I wish you very much luck in hockey & I'm gonna run you to DEATH! That's the way to become a gold medalist. I really hope our campers dramas come true. But I know they won't, they're getting false already! But I sort of don't mind. Lots better things are going to happen this year - just wait!
never forget "Esh!" at the basketball games. Also, the guys at Acme. She Boy camp. I really can't think of much more to say, trying to fill this page is a fairly hard task you know. So as my writing gets larger & my thoughts get sillier, I must say this is nerve-wracking while I write. Lots of luck over my shoulder while I write. Lots of luck in all you do especially sports, I know you will make a good name for yourself in hockey, Basketball & Softball. So bye for now,
Pre 65
